Take Five!

Nebraska Press Association 2013 Annual Convention

with sponsorship from Nebraska Press Advertising Service

April 12-13, 2013

The theme for this year's convention is "Take Five." "Take Five" ideas away from the workshops, panel discussions and roundtables to help your newspaper become better, more profitable and more competitive.

And "Take Five" from your busy schedule to relax, be entertained and enjoy the company of fellow newspaper people. New at convention this year will be the

"TAKE FIVE"

NETWORKING ROUNDTABLES SESSION

on Saturday afternoon, where newspaper staffers can mix and mingle with peers from similar sized newspapers, to share ideas and experiences.

The event is provided at no charge to our member newspapers, which includes lunch and refreshments.

The Showcase will feature demonstrations of student digital media projects and a discussion of what the Drone Journalism Lab at the College of Journalism and Mass Communications is learning about covering stories with inexpensive unmanned aerial vehicles.

Hub Foster, longtime York News-Times columnist, dies

Longtime York News-Times columnist, Hub Foster, died March 8, 2013, at the age of 95. The York native and longtime businessman left a legacy of community service beyond his decades of writing for the News-Times.

Foster graduated from UNL with a degree in economics and served stateside in the Army during World War II. In 1958, he joined the York News-Times, where he served as sports editor, business manager, personnel director, advertising manager, columnist and editorial writer. After he “retired” from the newspaper in 1982, he proposed to Publisher, Don Gillen, that the News-Times help sponsor a travel club for people 55 and older. Foster escorted many trips, which included visits to all 50 states as well as 52 countries.

Foster continued to be a mainstay at the News-Times, and until a few months ago, he was at the news office every morning, six days a week. His columns, “Chit Chat” and “Four Score,” were staples for News-Times readers. He decided to retire again last fall but continued to write “Four Score”; added a new column, “Travel Talk” and agreed to be a member of the Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) board of directors.

He is survived by his children, Jane Thompson, William Foster and Richard Foster, and was preceded in death by his wife, Ruth in 2006. Foster’s funeral service was held March 11, 2013, in York.

About the Duncan Home and Sculpture Garden

Karen and Robert Duncan began collecting art in the late 1970s. They visit museums, international expositions, galleries and artists' studios across the globe, selecting works that interest them.

The Duncan collection has been featured in Sculpture and Arts & Antiques magazines. The works are diverse, but with areas of concentration, such as figurative art, basketry, sculpture and new media. The couple relishes opportunities to meet artists whose works they own to learn more about their motivations and creative processes.

The home was designed by London-based, Greek architect Demetri Porphyrios and completed in 2002. It is surrounded by a 35-acre sculpture garden with plantings that include grasses, trees, flowers and a vineyard.

Robert Duncan is Chairman Emeritus of Duncan Aviation, one of the world's largest business aviation sales and service organizations. He continues to be an active pilot. Both he and Karen are active advocates for the arts and have served on such boards as the International Sculpture Center, Bemis Center for Contemporary Art, The KANEKO, Sheldon Museum of Art and Mid-America Arts Alliance.

Gary Kebbel

Professor, College of Journalism and Mass Communications
University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Gary Kebbel is working to create a multidisciplinary, multicampus Center for Mobile Media at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, with funding from the Ford Foundation and the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation.

He was dean of the UNL College of Journalism and Mass Communications for two years. During that time, the college created the nation's first Drone Journalism Lab, started nearly a dozen new classes, increased enrollment, raised money from new sources and created exchange relationships with universities and institutes in China, India and Russia.

Before coming to Nebraska, Kebbel was the journalism program director at the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation in Miami, where he administered the Knight News Challenge, a $25 million contest to fund digital news innovations and experiments.

He is a founding editor of USA TODAY.com and Newsweek.com. As News Director at AOL, he helped build one of the largest news and social sites on the Internet.

Kebbel is a Fulbright Senior Specialist who did his Fulbright work in South Africa. He is a member of the U.S.-Russia Bilateral Presidential Commission subgroup on media.

Matt Waite

Matt Waite is a professor of practice at the College of Journalism and Mass Communications, teaching reporting and digital product development. He is also a graduate of the college, earning a Bachelor of Journalism degree in 1997.

Prior to joining the faculty, he was the senior news technologist for the St. Petersburg Times of Florida and the principal developer of the Pulitzer Prize-winning PolitiFact. In 2007, he began working as a hybrid journalist/programmer, combining reporting experience and Web development to create new platforms for journalism. The first platform he developed was PolitiFact, a website that fact checks what politicians say. The site became the first website awarded the Pulitzer Prize in 2009. After PolitiFact, he and the New Products Development Team built journalistic products involving entertainment listings, high school sports, local crime and real estate. His projects tripled traffic to high school sports content, doubled local audience, won awards and accounted for more than 50 percent of all traffic to the St. Petersburg Times websites in less than a year.

Before becoming a Web developer, he was an award-winning investigative reporter. He began his journalism career at the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette in Little Rock, covering police and breaking news, including deadly tornadoes and the crash of American Airlines flight 1420 in 1999. In 2000, he moved to the St. Petersburg Times, covering crime and city government in a suburban county. In 2003 he moved to the metro staff of the Times and later the investigative staff. From 2005-2007, he co-authored a series of award-winning stories about Florida's vanishing wetlands. That work was later expanded into a book, "Paving Paradise: Florida's Vanishing Wetlands and the Failure of No Net Loss," published in 2009 by the University Press of Florida.
