Three will join Nebraska Journalism Hall of Fame

Three inductees, including the Executive Director of the Nebraska Press Association, will be inducted to the Nebraska Journalism Hall of Fame on October 19, 2018, during an evening induction program and banquet for the honorees at the Cornhusker Marriott in Lincoln, NE.

The Hall of Fame honors those distinguished persons who have made significant contributions to journalism, their communities, the state or the nation. A selection committee of NPA and CoJMC representatives select the inductees from those who have been nominated. Since the First Hall of Fame ceremony in April, 1975, 109 honorees have been inducted.

This year, The Nebraska Press Association and the UNL College of Journalism and Mass Communications will honor Allen J. Beermann, Stuart "Stu" Bohacek (posthumously), and John Gottschalk.

Allen J. Beermann

Allen J. Beermann's career is synonymous with civic engagement and public service. After six terms as Secretary of State, he was named Executive Director of the Nebraska Press Association, becoming a dedicated advocate for the state's newspapers, open government and Nebraskans' right to know.

While Executive Director of the Nebraska Press Association, he has been a board member of the National Newspaper Association Foundation, hosted an NNA national convention in Omaha and helped establish programs for the NNA's Fellows Program.

Stuart "Stu" Bohacek (posthumously)

Stu started his journalism career when he became owner, editor and columnist of the Wilber Republican in 1949 until 1956.

After his domestic newspaper career, Bohacek continued spreading global journalism with the U.S. Information Agency (USIA) while serving in the Army, stationed in Japan. During his time in the military, he was trained to speak Russian and Czech. He served in Prague as the Chief of the Czechoslovak Service for the Voice of America, which is the USIA's radio arm. In this position, he managed multiple radio programs that were broadcast to various Czech-speaking areas to explain the problems, hopes and aims of the U.S.

John Gottschalk

Growing up in a newspaper family, John Gottschalk began his career in journalism in the back shop of the Sheridan Co. Star. He took those skills to Sidney when, in 1968 at the age of 25, he became owner and publisher of the Sidney Telegraph. In 1975 he joined the Omaha World-Herald, where he eventually became CEO and publisher. He moved the World-Herald to an industry leader in digital typesetting and offset production.

Help promote the THINK F1RST campaign!

Thank you to our members who have supported the Think F1rst campaign with local articles and editorials, and by running the print and online house ads.

The campaign launched July 4 and runs through September 30 on statewide radio/television stations, statewide newspapers and on websites and social media platforms.

The foundations of the Nebraska Broadcasters Association and Nebraska Press Association, which are members of Media of Nebraska, mutually agreed to fund the multimedia creative elements of the campaign, which were created by Clark Creative Group of Omaha. Clark Creative Group made a significant donation of time and services as part of their commitment to the project.

Think F1rst is a campaign designed to express a simple directive: to encourage all Nebraskans to think about the First Amendment. Using various statewide media platforms, the campaign will help educate Nebraskans about the five freedoms guaranteed in the First Amendment. The campaign components feature five Nebraskans, each highlighting one of the five freedoms. To specifically reach younger Nebraskans, the campaign will use statewide social media, including Snapchat, Instagram and YouTube. Online postings will present facts on the First Amendment and encourage sharing those facts. These messages will be presented by Nebraskans aged 17-24.

Newspapers are encouraged to continue promoting the campaign with house print and online ads, which you can download at www.nebpress.com. Login to MEMBER LOGIN, click MEMBER DOWNLOADS, click on SPECIAL SECTIONS & THINK F1RST folder.

September 21-23 Drone Workshop in Lincoln, hosted by UNL and Natl. Press Photographers Association

The National Press Photographers Association (NPPA), and the Drone Journalism Lab at the University of Nebraska continue their innovative program to train journalists in using drones, or unmanned aerial systems (UAS), for their news coverage.

The program featuring hands-on workshops and flight training is being presented with support from the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, Democracy Fund and First Look Media. Additional funding is provided by the University of Georgia Grady College of Journalism and Mass Communication, the University of Oregon, School of Journalism and Communication, the Cox Institute for Journalism Innovation, Management and Leadership and the Syracuse University Newhouse School of Public Communications.

The September 21-23 workshop at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, will offer training on safe drone operations and information journalists need to study for the Federal Aviation Administration's Part 107 Drone Pilot's Certificate. The program will also help those needing to go through the recertification process. In addition, the three-day workshops will focus on the ethical issues of drone journalism, community best practices and coordinated operations in a breaking news environment and explore ways drone photography can be used in innovative storytelling.

The workshop will begin at 9 a.m. Friday and will be done by noon on Sunday. During the day, the workshop will be indoors. In the early evenings, we'll be outdoors for flight training.

For more information about the drone project, go to: <https://nppa.org/news/nppa-2018-drone-workshops>
