Holtz joins Polk Co. News staff

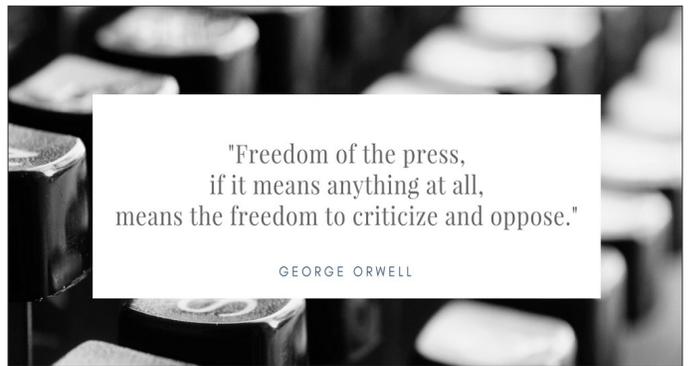

Polk Co. News, June 9, 2022

Rick Holtz joined the Stromsburg Polk Co. News staff on May 20, after working the past 15 years for newspapers in Indiana. Most recently he was the advertising manager at the Journal Review in Crawfordsville, IN.

Holtz, 39, got his start in newspapers in Crawfordsville at The Paper of Montgomery County in 2006. Crawfordsville is unique in that it has two daily newspapers in a county that has fewer than 38,000 residents. The Paper opened in 2004, while the Journalism Review has been in business for more than 179 years. Holtz also spent time at The Paper's sister newspaper, The Times in Noblesville, IN.

He has worked as a reporter, editor, page designer, ad builder, public notice clerk, bookkeeper and advertising manager between the three newspapers.

Holtz and his wife, Kimberly have four children. Kimberly is the sister of new Polk Co. News Co-Owner, Alan Sparrow. Alan and his wife, Beth Sparrow just purchased the Polk Co. News on June 1 from Dave and Sandy Thompson.

Sutton Clay Co. News named 2022 Grand Marshal of annual parade

Clay Co. News, June 1, 2022

Sutton, NE, celebrates it's 151st anniversary this year, and the Clay County News has been named 2022 Grand Marshal of the annual parade, set for Saturday, July 2.

"Start Spreading the News" is the theme set by the Sutton Area Chamber of Commerce for the 2022 Dugout Days parade.

"We're thrilled and honored by this," said Tory Duncan, managing editor of the Clay County News. "Our staff through the years, since I came on board back in June 2009, has worked hard, working many hours to deliver hometown community news to our readers. This is an absolute honor for our current staff," shared Duncan.

George named managing editor of Council Bluffs Daily Nonpareil

Effective May 23, Rachel George is the new managing editor of the Council Bluffs Daily Nonpareil, and will also oversee four western Iowa weeklies and four Omaha-area weeklies.

George has been with the company for nearly eight years, starting out covering Papillion before taking over the editor role for the Gretna Breeze. She was most recently the news editor in charge of the Omaha suburban weeklies.

Nebraska native returns to Lincoln to join Journal Star, HuskerExtra

Omaha World-Herald, June 8, 2022

Amie Just, a native Nebraskan and Lincoln Southeast graduate, is returning to Lincoln, the Journal Star and HuskerExtra as a columnist and writer.

She comes to Lincoln from the New Orleans Times-Picayune, where she covered the Saints for almost three years and LSU. Before that, she was the beat writer assigned to the University of Montana in Missoula for the Missoulian and a statewide network of publications owned by Lee Enterprises, parent company of the Journal Star and The Omaha World-Herald.

Just was an Associated Press Sports Editors Top 10 finisher in beat writing in 2018 and 2020. In 2021, she was honored by the Pro Football Writers of America as a finalist for the Terez A. Paylor Emerging Writer Award and with a third-place finish for the Bob Oates Beat Reporting Award.

She will pick up where former Husker columnist and reporter Steve Sipple, left off. Just will also appear with Sam McKewon, World-Herald sports editor, on The Showdown, a HuskerExtra-exclusive video podcast, and will provide content that appears on HuskerExtra and in The World-Herald.

Kruger joins News-Chronicle full-time

Part-time Wisner News-Chronicle sports correspondent, Dusty Kruger has accepted an offer from Publisher Chris Rhoades to join the paper as a full-time employee. Kruger has been working as a part-time correspondent since 2021.

Kruger will continue to focus on sports for Wisner-Pilger and Bancroft-Rosalie, and also help cover city council, school, education and community news.

Summer exhibit in David City honors longtime newspaperman, Jack Tarr

Hannah Schrodt, David City Banner-Press, May 19, 2022

An exhibit at the Butler County Historical Society's Depot Museum in David City will honor longtime Banner-Press editor and community member, Jack Tarr.

The exhibit - which features an advertising memorabilia collection of Tarr's - opened Memorial Day weekend and continues through August 2022.

Included in the exhibit are close to 40 front pages from old newspapers (close to 19 different papers) that existed in Butler County from the 1800s to present day.

Butler County Historian, Jim Reisdorff created the exhibit, which has special meaning since he has been a correspondent for the Banner-Press since graduating from college in 1978 and moving back to the community.

Jack Tarr started his career at the former The People's Banner newspaper in about 1953 and remained when The People's Banner merged with the Butler County Press, which then created The Banner-Press.

Tarr left in the late '50s to work in public relations at Doane University in Crete, but returned to the Banner-Press in about 1960. In 1970, he became the editor/publisher, a title he kept until retiring in 1990. Tarr died in 2004.

Tarr served as NPAS president in 1977 and NPA president in 1988. He received the Master Editor-Publisher Award in 1991 and was inducted into the Nebraska Journalism Hall of Fame in 1994.

Relevance Project

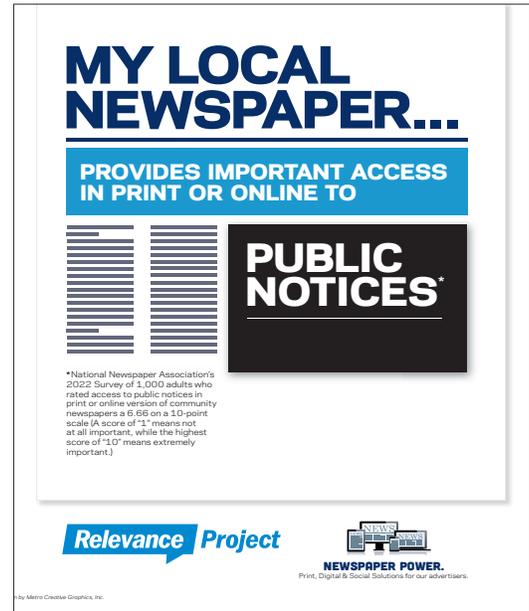

The Relevance Project adds new promo ad touting ‘Consumers Trust Newspapers’

The Relevance Project — The Relevance Project recently shared information about the Nielsen Co. 2021 Trust in Advertising Study. Check out the following for more information: Here’s further proof that advertisers and marketers seeking a trusted media should hire newspapers: Products in a newspaper’s portfolio show up in the Top 5 “trusted advertising channels” rated by U.S. customers. So says Nielsen’s 2021 Trust in Advertising Study in a special excerpt granted to The Relevance Project.

Seven out of 10 consumers said they either trust completely or trust somewhat these four channels, a term Nielsen uses to distinguish where ads show up or are referenced:

- Ads in newspapers (No. 5 at 68.5%)
- Editorial content, such as newspaper articles (No. 4 at 68.7%); a nice endorsement for branded or sponsored content.
- Branded websites (No. 3 at 71.1%), which certainly includes newspapers.

- Emails “I signed up for” (No. 2 at 71.7%), a tout to newspapers offering e-newsletters and marketing emails sent to newspaper readers.
- And the No. 1 channel: “Recommendations from people I know” (89.2%). What better trusted source than newspaper readers who are informed consumers.

So why is it so critical for Congress to pass the LJSA now? Quite simply, the future of local newspapers in many areas of the country hangs in the balance. In the past 15 years, more than a quarter of all newspapers have disappeared, and many more have been forced to make staff reductions that have diminished the coverage of topics that impact local citizens. The way people get their information and advertise their local businesses is quickly moving to digital, and local newspapers continue to be impacted by the Big Tech companies that use their original content without fair compensation. To make matters worse, newspapers, like many other industries, were financially impacted by the pandemic, even though the coverage provided by local newspapers was more vital than ever.

The current economic challenges have only hastened the need for Congress to act on the LJSA quickly. As inflation is impacting everyone, it has made the environment for local newspapers even more challenging. The cost of retaining employees has gone up. The cost of newsprint has increased 30% over last year, and the cost of gas used to deliver the newspaper is up more than 50% in the past two years. Many newspaper carriers drive hundreds and even thousands of miles each week. These increases have driven many local newspapers closer to making further reductions or even ceasing operations.

Who wins with the passage of the Local Journalism Sustainability Act? Clearly, local newspapers win by obtaining the support needed to continue their invest ments in reporting on local news. But the real winners are the communities that keep their local newspaper. From watching the actions of local government, reporting on the state of local schools, tracking local health trends or providing the latest restaurant reviews and sales information, local newspapers keep a community connected and informed.

We encourage everyone to reach out to their representatives in Congress and ask them to support local journalism. Whether it is inclusion of the LJSA in the budget reconciliation bill, or a stand-alone bill, the time for action is now. It’s a rare opportunity for government to act on something that benefits us all.
